John E. Green Company 2011 Safety First Calendars

As part of the kick-off of the John E. Green Company Safety First Program an employee suggested that we have the children of employees draw pictures of their parents working safely on our job sites. Upon submission of the drawings it became apparent that these pictures could be useful in raising and maintaining safety awareness on our job sites.

The initial delivery involved creating a video using the children's drawings that could be sent to our employee's homes. The drawings were put on the video and set to music that portrayed the importance of family values. The videos were created and in addition to being sent to families homes were also placed on the John E. Green Company website.

To further the use of these talented children's drawings, a calendar was created so that a reminder to work safely would be with each of our projects throughout the year. Each child's drawing was used in the creation of the calendar. In addition, each month has a safety reminder that incorporates our safe topic of the month which provides a point of emphasis for our workers.

The Safety First Program revolves around employees making good decisions on a daily basis. The John E. Green Company feels that it is important to have our employees understand that each of us is working to improve the lives of our families. While profit and schedule remain key ingredients to any successful contractor, at the John E. Green Company safety comes first.
